Biographical History

Angeline Brigham and Daniel F. Mitchell Sr.

Angeline "Angie" Brigham was born in West Borough (now Westboro), Massachusetts on June 27, 1824. After graduation from Mt. Holyoke Seminary in Massachusetts, she became the principal of the Young Ladies Seminary in Bridgewater, Massachusetts. Angeline married Daniel F. Mitchell Sr. on October 3, 1850. Angeline became the second wife of Daniel F. Mitchell Sr. and stepmother to two of his sons, William Dexter and Daniel Francis "Frank" Mitchell Jr. However, on October 5, 1854, Angeline gave birth to a daughter, who was named after her - Angeline "Angie" Brigham Mitchell.

Daniel F. Mitchell Sr. descended from Experience Mitchell, who came to the New World on the third Pilgrim ship, which was titled The Ann, in 1623. Experience was considered one of the "original proprietors," who settled in Bridgewater, Massachusetts. Daniel Sr. was born in Bridgewater on February 7, 1807, the son of Eunice and Daniel Mitchell, Esq. One of five children, Daniel F. Mitchell Sr. showed an early interest in surveying and civil engineering, which later became a lifelong career.

By February of 1857, Angeline Brigham was the preceptress at Battleboro Academy in Battleboro, Vermont. Nevertheless, later in the year, Daniel Sr. moved his family to Kansas in order to support that territory's free-state movement - Angeline may have joined the family later in 1858. In the fall of 1857, the Junction City Town Company in Kansas was incorporated, with Daniel Mitchell Sr. as Secretary. However, the family may have lived in Ogden, Kansas until 1860, or April of 1861, and then relocated to Junction City, Kansas. Daniel Sr., served as surveyor for the town site in 1858. He also worked at the U. S. Land Office as an engineer and as an attorney for land issues. Meanwhile, Angeline taught school in a log cabin with a dirt floor.

In response to a call for surveyors and teachers in Arizona Territory, the Mitchells joined the Grizzly Callen party bound for Prescott in 1875. The family traveled by covered wagon, bringing with them the possessions they most valued, including a canary in a gilded cage. Prescott's early land distribution had not been exactly legal; early settlers had purchase their lots before the official sale date. A solution was reached in 1875 when Judge Fleury temporarily took possession of all land and resold to the original owners at little or no cost. Daniel Sr. was hired to assist with this project by making an official survey.

The Mitchells were active in the Prescott community. Daniel surveyed the town-sites of Prescott and Wickenburg and served, in 1876, as Justice of the Peace, while Angeline was appointed by the State Superintendent of Schools as a member of the Territorial Board of Examiners for teachers. Angeline was also a prolific writer and had articles published in such magazines as Harpers Young Folks, Mother's Journal, Youth Companion and Home Journal.

Daniel F. Mitchell Sr. contracted an illness while working in Wickenburg and died at his Prescott home on July 23, 1877. He is buried at Citizen's Cemetery. Angeline Brigham Mitchell passed away on July 21, 1906, at the Maricopa Indian Reservation near Phoenix, where she was residing with her daughter's family. She was buried in the local Masonic cemetery. Although her obituary states that the body might later be moved to a plot next to her husband's, there is no record of a re-interment.

Angeline "Angie" Brigham Mitchell and George E. Brown

Daniel Sr. and Angeline's daughter, named after her mother - Angeline "Angie" Brigham Mitchell was born in Bridgewater, Massachusetts, on October 5, 1854. Education was valued in the Mitchell household and a gift of a book was common, even for baby Angie. Much of Angie's early education was under her mother's tutelage and became an excellent student. Attending both Kansas Agricultural College in Manhattan (now Kansas State University) and Lawrence University (now the University of Kansas), Angie was just shy of graduation when her father's financial set-backs forced her to abandon her education. Nevertheless, she soon joined her mother's profession as a teacher. After arriving in Prescott, Arizona she taught at Miller Valley, Tiger Mine, Wild Rye, Tonto Basin, and West Prescott schools.

In January 1877 she resigned her position as a teacher in Walnut Grove School and, according to the Arizona Miner newspaper; she began advertising her Private School. In addition to scholastic endeavors, Angie was also a serious student of music. In March 1881, Angie served as Enrolling and Engrossing Clerk of the House of Representatives for the 11th Arizona Territorial Legislature. She was an organist at Westside Church in Prescott and a member of the Golden Rule Chapter of the Eastern Star.

On April 20, 1881, Angie married George Edward Brown. George Edward Brown was born July 17, 1846 in either Lee County or Burlington, Iowa. His education consisted of instruction in the local schools. In 1861, he enlisted as a private with Company B, 14th Iowa Volunteers. He mustered out at Davenport, Iowa, August 8, 1865. His family emigrated to Kansas in 1866, living in Olathe, Johnson County, Wyandotte, and Topeka. Politically inclined, George was named Secretary of the Republican Central Committee and Delegate to the 1872 Congressional and State Convention. Other jobs included a post in the Kansas State Treasurer's Office and he worked as a railroad engineer. He traveled to Prescott, by way of Colorado, in 1877 with the Murphy party and established a ranch in the Agua Fria Valley near Mayer, Arizona.

During his courtship with Angie, George was elected as a Republican to the Arizona Territorial Legislature (1880). After their marriage, George continued his political activities, holding several positions within the local Republican Party. He also acted as Deputy Sheriff during the administrations of Ed Bowers and William Owen "Bucky" O'Neill and as a Deputy Marshal for the northern part of the Territory. He was also a member of the Prescott Literary, Dramatic & Library Association, even assuming the post of president. Angie, a meticulous record keeper, became an amateur historian, documenting local events, pioneer histories, and collecting natural specimens. She also served as a member of the Board of Examiners for teachers, both at the territorial and county level. The couple moved from their ranch to the Maricopa Indian Reservation in 1904 when George was appointed to the Indian Service as an agricultural specialist.

George contracted spinal meningitis and passed away in March 1908. Angie died on January 23, 1909. Both are buried in Phoenix. The couple did not have children.

D. F. Mitchell

Daniel Francis "Frank" Mitchell Jr., also known as D. F., was born to Daniel F. Mitchell Sr. and his first wife Catherine W. Brigham on June 3, 1843, in Boston, Massachusetts. While in Junction City, Kansas, D. F. joined the Masons, later maintaining his membership and various official duties with the Prescott Masonic Lodge. During the Civil War, D. F. served with the Union. Upon his arrival in Prescott in 1876, he opened a photography studio, known at first as the Art Gallery. He spent many years documenting the people and places in the Prescott area. In 1883, Edwin Baer joined D. F. in a partnership but later in 1885, he retired from the photography business.

After his retirement, D. F. worked in several fields, including jobs in real estate and bookkeeping. Sometime in 1923, D. F. entered the Arizona Pioneers' Home as he was suffering from blindness. He died on December 28, 1928, following a fall down a flight of stairs at the Prescott Masonic Lodge and is interred in the Prescott Masonic Cemetery. D. F. never married.

William Dexter Mitchell

William Dexter Mitchell was born on July 31, 1841, Daniel F. Mitchell Sr. and his first wife Catherine W. Brigham in Boston, Massachusetts. He enlisted in the Civil War in 1861. He was Captain of Company K, 5th Kentucky Cavalry, in General Sherman's "March to the Sea. He was killed March 10, 1865.
